The Philosopher's Information Center

Brief History

The Philosopher's Index founded by Dr. Richard H. Lineback in 1966 and he became the editor. The Philosopher's Information Center also founded by Lineback in 1967, which owns and publishes The Philosopher's Index. The Philosopher's Index was made available online with DIALOG in 1979. In 1990 the Philosopher's Index was made available on CD-ROM and online by OVID (formerly SilverPlatter). The Philosopher's Index was made available from CSA (now ProQuest) and OCLC in 2004 and made available from EBSCO in 2007.

Scope and Coverage

It contains over 600,000 records from publications that date back to 1902 and cover 139 countries in 37 languages. The Philosopher's Index covers all subject areas of philosophy and related disciplines like Ethics, Logic, Metaphilosophy, Metaphysics etc. Articles from over 1700 Journals and e-Journals, Books, e-Books, Dictionaries and Encyclopedias are included here. Indexing is done by a small team of 12 assistant editors, who are philosophers.

Kind of Information

AU: Lercher, Aaron

SO: Environmental Ethics. Fall 2006; 28(3): 315-322

IS: 0163-4275

AB: Our concern for nonhuman nature can be justified in terms of a human right to liberty of ecological conscience. The liberty of ecological conscience, like religious liberty, is a negative right against interference. Each ecological conscience supports a claim to the protection of the parts of nonhuman nature that are current or potential sites of its active pursuit of natural value. If we acknowledge the fallibility of each conscience in its pursuit of genuine natural value, a policy of indefinitely extensive conservation can be justified.

Destruction of an object of current or potential natural value is like destroying a church, mosque, temple, or other holy place. This justification for environmental conservation is analogous to the standard justification for individual negative rights, as upheld by the liberal tradition of Locke, Mill, and Rawls. (edited)

For Book

TI: Which Rights Should Be Universal?

AU: Talbott, William J

PB: Oxford Univ Pr : Oxford, 2005

IB: 0195173473

AB: In this book, Talbott builds on the work of John Rawls, Jurgen Habermas, J. S. Mill, Amartya Sen, and Henry Shue to explain how, over the course of history, human beings have learned how to adopt a distinctively moral point of view from which it is possible to make universal, though not infallible, judgments of right and wrong. He explains how this distinctively moral point of view has led to the discovery of the moral importance of nine basic rights. Undoubtedly, the most controversial issue raised by the claim of universal rights is the issue of moral relativism. How can the advocate of universal rights avoid being a moral imperialist? In this book, Talbott shows how to defend basic individual rights from a universal moral point of view that is neither imperialistic nor relativistic. (publisher, edited)
