Scope and Coverage

The Gazetteer provides an exhaustive Place Name Index to Great Britain, containing over 50,000 entries. It lists the historic county and the main administrative areas in which each place lies. It forms a valuable resource for those working in the media, tourism, heritage, publishing or education. It is also of great value for local and family historians. Place names are included alongside their National Grid reference. The aim is to include every settlement which has a distinct name and identity. This includes hamlets, villages, towns and cities. Each district within an urban area which has a distinct name and identity has been included as a separate entry. Places whose names have more than one standard spelling are included under each spelling. Similarly, places with Welsh and English or Gaelic and English names are listed under both.

The detail content comprises of place name, national grid reference, latitude and longitude, country, administrative country, district, unitary authority area, police area and map.

Kind of Information

Each entry contains place name, national grid reference, latitude and longitude, country, administrative country, district, unitary authority area, police area and map.

Place name: Place name includes the name of every settlement which has a distinct name and identity. This includes hamlets, villages, towns and cities. Each district within an urban area which has a distinct name and identity has been included as a separate entry.

National grid reference: These represent the 1km x 1km square in which the "centre" of the settlement concerned (requirement area) lies.

Latitude and longitude: These are the latitude and longitude of the places of requirement or settlement.

Administrative countries, district council, country council and others: The "administrative counties" are defined as those local government areas of England within which the responsibility for local government service provision is shared between a "county council" and several "district councils". The "unitary authority areas" are those local government areas within which a single local authority is responsible for all service provision.

Police Area: The areas of the Metropolitan Police and the City of London Police are defined by Section 76 of the London Government Act 1963.
